Description

Part of a woman's kroj; mustard-colored vest with heavy floral embroidery; the front of the vest is covered with floral embroidery that is orange, reds, purple, greens and blue; gold metallic lace is sewn onto each side of the vest (in a straight line up each side of the front opening and then across a short distance, then slanted downward and toward the side of the vest); gold metallic threads have also been sewn into the floral and leaf patterns of the embroidery beneath the lace; a band of off-white fabric has been sewn around the bottom edge of the vest; the back of the vest is also covered with floral embroidery; the same metallic lace drapes across the width of the back in a scalloped arrangement with two bands of lace extending down from this and to the bottom of the vest; the lace divides the back into six sections; the top three sections all have the same orange, yellow and green floral embroidery (with touches of purple and blue); the center section of the bottom half has a large red rose design with smaller daisies and leaves around it (greens, blue, orange and purple); the section on either side of this one also highlights a large red rose with a slightly smaller purple flower and other smaller ones besides (red, blues); the leaves are embroidered with browns and embellished with gold metallic thread; no buttons of any kind at the front opening ---- ----
