

Basic Detail Report

Bodice

Medium

textile

Description

Dark blouse blouse with brown lining and brown strap at waist (on inside) with one hook and eye closure; fitted bodice; front is in three layers, or illusion thereof; most visible layer shares the appearance of a fitted jacket with four blue cloth buttons on the right side of the front opening, along with five button holes to their left (by edge of opening), and five blue cloth buttons on the left side of the front opening; the collar is that of a normal jacket, fold-down on each side, lapels; a small dark blue ruffle is at the bottom edge of this part of the front; the next layer of the front lies beneath the jacket layer and is straight fabric that extends the blouse another four or five inches at the bottom; the third layer of the blouse lies at the top of the jacket layer and acts as a part of the neckline; two small pieces of fabric are just under the neckline, one on each side on the front opening; the right piece of fabric has three button holes while the left piece has three blue cloth buttons; one hook and eye closure is at the bottom of these fabric pieces; this layer gives the appearance of a shirt under the jacket layer; jacket layer continues around blouse to its back, as well as the straight layer beneath it; the straight layer has a gathered piece of fabric down its middle that begins at the waistline and extends to the blouse's bottom edge; the gathered fabric extends seven inches in either direction at the bottom edge; the jacket layer frames this embellishment with pleats on either side that are surrounded by gathered fabric (on sides and bottom of pleats); the right pleat has a blue cloth button in the upper left corner and three blue cloth buttons across its bottom; the left pleat should mirror this, but has only one button in the middle of the pleat's bottom edge; the sleeves are gathered at the top and puffed; the sleeves narrow down at the elbow to become more fitted to the wrist; the cuffs are four inches wide and have an extra fold on the front, a sort of right triangle with the base sewn at the outside edge of the sleeve and the point extending inward toward the blouse's bodice; part of a dress ---- From Kralovice, owned by Anna Kra'lona Hubhora, part-time milliner(?) from Vienna; Her father was a member of the Senate (Josef) ----

Dimensions

Overall: 30 in. (76.2 cm)